Introduction

This information guide provides a catalogue of the variable information available from the 2006 Census of Population and Dwellings. It represents all the 2006 Census data available.

The information listed within this guide is categorised into five parts. There is Dwelling, Household, Family, Personal, and Geographic information. Within each part, the variables are generally arranged alphabetically.

This guide was prepared by the Information Customer Services Division in conjunction with the Census User Needs Business Unit of Statistics New Zealand.

Glossary of abbreviations used:

nec/n.e.c. Not elsewhere classified

nfd Not further defined

(xx) Located after each heading, (xx) indicates the number of categories available at the level displayed

MELAA Middle Eastern/Latin American/African.

How to use this guide

When ordering customised tables from the 2006 Census of Population and Dwellings, you should be specific about your requirements. There are four key components to any table request. They are:

- (1) Census year, eg 2006
- (2) Subject population, eg Census Usually Resident Population Count
- (3) Areas, eg Area Unit of Usual Residence
- (4) Variable name, eg Age – Five Year Groups.

The following are examples of the table specifications required to produce census output:

Example 1

Example 2

Number of Bedrooms (page 3) by Number of Usual Residents in the Household (page 14) for the Census Private Occupied Dwelling Count.

Single Year of Age (page 25) and Sex (page 143) by Dwelling Type (page 1) for Census Usually Resident Population Count in Private Dwellings.

The default option for providing data is to provide descriptions and data only. If users require code numbers relating to the categories to be included with the descriptions, this needs to be included in the request. Some users find these codes to be of assistance when dealing with detailed data that can be looked at in a summarised form at higher levels of the classification.

Subject populations (and explanatory definitions)

Main subject populations include:

Census Usually Resident Population Count in New Zealand

Consists of people in New Zealand on census night who are usually resident in New Zealand.

Census Night Population Count

This refers to people present at the place of enumeration on census night, including overseas visitors in New Zealand on census night. Excluded are New Zealand residents who are temporarily out of the country on census night.

Dependent Child

A child who is under 18 years of age and does not have full-time employment.

Overseas Population

People in New Zealand on census night who usually reside overseas.

Employed Census Usually Resident Population Count Aged 15 Years and Over

Refers to people usually resident in New Zealand employed in either the full-time or part-time labour force. It excludes people who are unemployed and seeking work, and those people in the non-labour force.

Dwellings

Any building or structure, or part thereof, that is used (or intended to be used) for the purpose of human habitation. It can be of a permanent or temporary nature and includes structures such as houses, motels, hotels, prisons, motor homes, huts and tents. There can be more than one dwelling within a building, such as an apartment building where each separate apartment or unit is considered a dwelling.

Occupied Private Dwelling

An occupied private dwelling accommodates a person or a group of people. It is not generally available for public use. The main purpose of a private dwelling is as a place of habitation.

Occupied Non-Private Dwellings

A dwelling providing short- or long-term communal or transitory type accommodation. Non-private dwellings are generally available to the public by virtue of employment, study, special need, legal requirement or recreation.

People Resident in Dwellings on Census Night

Refers to people and the dwellings they occupied on census night, regardless of whether or not it is their normal place of residence.

People Usually Resident in Dwellings

Refers to people who usually reside in dwellings (includes those people who were in the dwelling on census night (private and non-private dwellings) and people who were temporarily absent (private dwellings only), but excludes guests and visitors to the dwelling on census night).

Workplace Address

Refers to the workplace address that people have provided. This can be used as a basis to identify the work-related travel habits/needs of people in an area.

Total Response Fields

There are some fields that have total response information available. These fields will be discussed with clients when information is being sought. All tables produced will have explanatory footnotes.

These include:

- Access to telecommunication systems
- Ethnic groups
- Fuel type used to heat dwellings
- Iwi
- Job search methods
- Languages spoken
- Religious affiliation
- Sources of income (personal, family, extended family, etc)
- Unpaid activities.

In general terms, a respondent can provide more than one answer in each field. The total count for each response, when added to the other responses in the field, may exceed the total number of people who provided the information. Where this occurs the total population count providing the responses is also included with the data.

General information

There is considerable information published, and this can be downloaded free from the Statistics NZ website: <http://www.stats.govt.nz>.

There are two questions in the individual questionnaire relating to health and disability. These questions are screening questions for the purpose of facilitating follow-up surveys and no information is output from these census questions.

Confidentiality rules will be applied to all data supplied. See: <http://www.stats.govt.nz/census/2006-census/methodology-papers/confidentiality-rules.htm> for details.
